

Appendix: Letter Metadata

Table 1: Autograph letters

Letter	Evidence	Notes
Att. 1.1–2.22	2.23.1: numquam ante arbitror te epistulam meam legisse nisi mea manu scriptam	Cicero states that 2.23 is the first letter not written in his own hand. The strong implication is that all – or at least the vast majority – of earlier letters were autographed. See Section 4 for discussion of 1.10 as an outlier.
Att. 8.2	8.2.4: ego xiii Kalend., cum eadem lucerna hanc epistulam scripsissem qua inflammaram tuam	Cicero describes writing by lamplight, strongly implying autograph composition.
Att. 11.24 (second part)	11.24.2: sed ad meam manum redeo	Cicero flags that he is returning to using his own hand, in order to discuss confidential material.
Att. 12.32	haec ad te mea manu	Explicit statement of handwriting.
Att. 13.28.4	hoc manu mea	Explicit statement of handwriting for the final section.
Att. 14.22	certior a Pilia factus mitti ad te Idibus tabellarios statim hoc nescio quid exaravi	The verb exaravi (‘scratched out’) implies autography.
Att. 15.20	hanc putavi mea manu scribendam, itaque feci	Explicit statement of handwriting.

Table 2: Explicitly dictated letters

Letter	Evidence	Notes
Att. 2.23	numquam ante arbitror te epistulam meam legisse nisi mea manu scriptam ... haec dictavi	Dictated while walking. Explicit contrast with previous autograph letters.
Att. 4.16	occupationum mearum vel hoc signum erit quod epistula librari manu est	Explicit statement: letter in a scribe’s hand.
Att. 5.17	hanc epistulam dictavi sedens in raeda	Explicitly dictated from a carriage.
Att. 7.13A	si scriberem ipse, longior epistula fuisset, sed dictavi propter lippitudinem	Explicitly dictated due to eye trouble.
Att. 8.12	dictare tamen hanc epistulam malui	Explicitly dictated due to eye trouble.
Att. 8.13	lippitudinis meae signum tibi sit librari manus	Explicitly scribal hand.
Att. 10.3A	alteram tibi eodem die hanc epistulam dictavi	Explicitly dictated.
Att. 14.21	haec scripsi seu dictavi apposita secunda mensa apud Vestorium	Explicitly dictated over dinner.
Att. 16.15	noli putare pigritia me facere quod non mea manu scribam	Explicit statement: not in Cicero’s own hand.

Table 3: Dictated letters inferred from context

Letter	Evidence	Notes
Att. 4.9	eo die Neapoli apud Paetum. a. d. iiii Kal. Mai. iens in Pompeianum bene mane haec scripsi	Written while travelling.
Att. 4.10	ad eum postridie mane vadebam cum haec scripsi	Written while travelling.
Att. 5.12	plura scribam ad te cum constitero; nunc eram plane in medio mari	Written while at sea.
Att. 6.4	haec festinans scripsi in itinere atque agmine	Written while travelling.
Att. 10.3	10.3A contrasts this letter with one written mea manu the previous day	Inferred from the contrast in the subsequent letter.
Att. 11.24.1	11.24.2: sed ad meam manum redeo	See Autograph table
Att. 13.28.1–3	13.28.4: hoc mea manu	The final section is flagged as written in Cicero's own hand.
Att. 14.5	haec scripsi ad te proficiscens Astura	Written while travelling.
Att. 14.6	haec ad te scripsi apposita secunda mensa	Written during dinner.
Att. 14.12	haec conscripsi x Kal., accubans apud Vestorium	Written while reclining at dinner.
Att. 14.16	conscendens ab hortis Cluvianis in phaselum epicopum has dedi litteras	Written while boarding a boat.
Att. 16.1	postridie iens ad Brutum in Nesidem haec scripsi	Written while travelling.
Att. 16.7	haec scripsi navigans cum Pompeianum accederem	Written while at sea.